THE BLUE AND GRAY.

Decoration of Federal and Confed erate Graves at Jefferson Barracks. Near St. Louis, Sunday, Without the Aid of the Politicians.

Sr. Louis, May 26 .- The decoration of the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers at the National cemetery, Jefferson barracks, twelve miles below the city, took place to-day instead of on the thirtieth of the month, it having been decided that Sunday was the most proper day for the ceremonies. Another purpose was to place the services in the hands of the clergy instead of politicians. This was very successfully carried out, and the number of people present greatly exceeded that in attendance on any previous occasion. There were also parts of three regiments of ate militia, and what are known as the police reserves present, numbering from twelve to fifteen hundred men. The Peoria, Illinois, Blues, who are here as the guests of the National Guard battalien, also participated, and presented a very fine appearance. The services consisted of two addresses, each in English and German, and the opening prayer, the Catholic, Episcopal, Unitarian, Lutheran and Hebrew churches being brought into requisition for clergymen as orators. Every-thing passed off in the best of order, and, although there were fully twelve thousand people and soldiers present, nothing occurred to mar the pleasure or purpose of the occa-

THE COUNTY WORKHOUSE.

Judge Legwood, of the Criminal Court, n the Question of the Liberty of a Citizen Jailer's and Turnkey's Fees, and the Power of the County Court Elaborately Discussed

In a habeas corpus case heard by Judge Logwood, of the criminal court, the following earned and elaborate opinion was rendere

State of Tennessee vs. Nancy Sidney, on trial of A The petitioner was committed to the workhouse by a justice of the peace on a conviction for assault and battery, and also to keep the peace for six months, on the twenti-eth of March, 1878. She is in the custody of the lessees of the county workhouse on both mittimuses, and the returns of W. M. Forrest, lesser, shows that he claims to hold ner under the mittimus on the assault and batterery case until she, as a convict, works out, pays or secures the full fine and costs assessed against her, which he claims and the transcript of the fine and costs deivered to him when he received her at the ail) amounts to nineteen dollars and thirtyive cents, including the turnkey's fees and ailer's fees accruing after conviction and up to the time she was delivered to the lessees of the workhouse, which amounts to four dol-lars and forty cents. The law does not provide for turnkey's fees in cases of to persons convicted and committed to the charge to students of the colored race who workhouse. The jail of Shelby county is the workhouse, and the moment a convict is the District, and to two colored students ancommitted to the workhouse he is entitled to an allowance of twenty-five cents a day from that day, and no jailer's fees can be charged against him, for he is then a workhouse con the turnkey's fees and jail fees (four dollars and forty cents) should be deducted from the dollars from Wednesday to Friday nineteen dollars and therty five cents, which next, in order to observe with due respect leaves fourteen dollars and ninety-five cents, and reverence the day on which the graves that, under her conviction, this petitioner is of the dead herces of the late war are to be bound to pay, secure, or work it out in the | decorated. Agreed to. workhouse. The return shows that she is entitled to a credit of fifty-nine days from the date of her commitment to the workhouse to this date, at twenty-five cents per day, from which it will be seen that she has worked out the amount of fourteen dollars and seventy-five cents, which leaves the amount of enty-five cents, which leaves the amount of Mr. Throckmorton, from the committee on twenty cents yet to be paid, worked out or Indian affairs, reported a bill to extend the secured. When this is done, she will be entitled to her discharge under the mittimus in the case of assault and battery. But the re-turn shows that the lessees of the workhouse her under a mittimus which commits her to the workhouse, and that they are entitled to hold her until the six months from time of her commitment expires, or intil she gives bond to keep the peace. I am of the opinion that a person who is committed to jail, upon failure to give a bond to keep the peace, can be required to give security for the expense of eding him while in jail and turnkey fees; and, upon failure to give such security, or paying for his own food while in jail, he can e made to work in the jail as a workhouse prisoner, but it is not lawful to send him to the lessees of the workhouse as a conrict. The county court has no power to lease his labor out for the purpose of reimbursing the county for feeding him, nor for the costs of a proceeding under a peace-warrant. Under this view of the law of the case, the prisoner will be entitled to her discharge under the mittimus in the case of assault and battery when she shall have paid in money or labor or secured according to law, the sum of twenty cents which is still unpaid. But W. M. Forrest is directed to deliver her to the jailer

Its Author Gives Positive Assurance that the Movement Will Not Produce Disturbance or Revolution -- The People Prefer Betermining the Question by Legal Methods.

The Cry of "Welf" when there is No Wolf is a Republican Pretense that there is Danger in this Investigation when there is No Danger.

WASHINGTON, March 27 .- Mr. Clarkson N. Potter, in a long letter to a New York friend, explains the effect of his resolution. He says, among other things: "You suggest that to raise a question about the last President of the last Presi dential election will bring on a disturbance or revolution. Not at all. About that possess yourself in peace. There is not the slightest chance of revolution or disturbance. We must get years further on before that will happen. I admit the success of the Republican leaders. Having lain down when the law was on our side, and when we ought to have stood up, it is not for us now to stand up as long as the law remains against us. But you will ask whether if there be no danger to public order from legal proceedings f there may not be from action by congress? No; no more than from the action of courts. Congress represents the people of the country, but it does not march before them; it expresses, but does not anticipate their will. Should the fraud connected with the electoral count appear so gross and palpable that you and all honorable men should unite in denouncing it, congress might then take action but if so, what congress might do-being the result of the action of men of all parties of the great body of the people not of a party would be effected quietly, certainly, and without violence or disturbance In saying this, I do not mean that I expect that this investigation is to be followed by either legal or congressional action. What if anything, should be done because of the inquiry, must depend upon the results of the inquiry; but I do mean that whatever action. if any, should follow the investigation, such action can neither disturb the peace and order nor the prosperity of the country. This cry of "wolf," when there is no wolf; this effort to make it appear that there is danger to peace or order from this investiga-tion is a Republican pretense, like the "bloody shirt" justification of the carpetbag government; like the public danger excuse advanced for and enforced by Durrell's infamous order, and the protection of returning-boards by bayonets; like the cry set up

The feeling among many Republicans was that, while we had been cheated in the re-turns, we had bulldozed negroes as badly, so that the accounts of wrong were equal. This belief in the bulldozing of the negro was based mainly upon the fact that in certain listricts in the south, which usually gave Republican majorities, there was not returned that year a single Republican vote. Now the people of the north have never un-derstood that this condition of things was family are invited. fraudulently prepared by the Republicans. We believe that it was by such proceedings we were cheated out of the election, and unless the proceedings be exposed the outrage will be repeated. Whatever may result from the proposed investigation, you may be sure that nothing can result that will disturb your flocks or balances. Never has our city been called upon to mourn so sad a bereavement as this, which has made the very air heavy with sighs. Jeannie Mageyner Sullivan was no ordinary woman. By nature a tender, delicate plant, one would scarcely have supposed that her frail constitution would have permitted the high degree of mental culture to which she had attained; and yet, with this great intellect, she united the simplicity of a child. Except in the mustcal circle, where she shone a beautiful light, the world knew not of her. She loved the society of the good and true—lived in the happiness of others, forever seeking "neath the rubbish of earth" for some stricken child of sorrow—forgetting self in this higher enjoyment. So pure she was, that, in her presence, the slanderer qualled, forgetting to send forth his poisoned shaft. In the still hour of night, surrounded by those who had given to her perhaps an idolary due only to the "Great I Am," she flee from her paradise of earthly love to that "Great Beyond," made beautiful by the presence of God. In attempting to pay to the "beloved dead" this little tribute of affection, our heart misgives us, and our pen falls to do justice to the sweet girl friend, who came to us when a stranger, bringing with her presence sunshine and gladness; and, as we looked upon her, as the sweet, sad bride of death, we could but envy the great conqueror his possession, and our hearts refused that submission which religion should teach us. Never has our city been called upon to cut her throat with a razor and then shot her with a revolver. Being met by Mr. and Mrs. Cullenbine on his way down stairs, he shot the father in the hip and cut the mother severely mith a butcher-knife; and, rushing out into the yard, he drew a razor across his own throat several times and expired almost instantly. The parents are severely, but not fatally, hurt. The daughter lived but a few minutes.

The donkey Jenny only was saved. The company was on their way from Grand Rapids to Chicago, intending to go over by boat this morning.
